

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A decorative light has a first adapter integrally formed with the decorative light and a second adapter integrally formed with the decorative light and opposed to the first adapter. The first adapter has a collar slidably mounted on the decorative light and has inner thread formed to correspond to the outer thread on the second adapter. Therefore, the total length of the decorative light is able to extend by screwing the collar of one decorative light to the second adapter of another decorative light. Furthermore, a plug is able to detachably connect to the first adapter to protect the first adapter from damage.

FOSTER 024360